

ISGP CARES SYMPOSIUM AGENDA

February 5-8, 2025

This year's symposium will bring together educators to explore the intersection of individual identity, community engagement, and social impact. We'll begin with a reception on Thursday evening, followed by two days dedicated to discussion and networking, starting with a conversation with Dr. Beverly Daniel Tatum on the defense of affinity spaces and their role in bridging divides. Friday's program also includes a visit to the Paideia School for a presentation on their Day of Dialogue as a way for schools to offer opportunities for meaningful discussions on community-building and intersectionality. On Saturday, we will explore opportunities for creating connections within our local communities and promoting civic engagement utilizing the Socio-Ecological framework for assessing and fostering successful community engagement. We'll wrap up the experience with dinner on Saturday evening which will provide the opportunity to debrief and celebrate before returning to our respective communities.
